Racial Injustice Tool Kit to Aid the Black Community

The following information is being provided as a starting point to dismantling the racial injustices and inequalities faced by the Black Community. The list of resources are by no means an end all answer, but rather resources to jump start ideas and initiatives. The items highlighted in blue are hyperlinks to resources. If you would like to provide additional resources or ideas, please email the Director of the Unity Center.

For the Black Community

- SELF-CARE!
  - Whatever that looks like, and if you need to explore to find it, now is the time.
- Take all the space or none of the space you need. Don’t be afraid to TAKE A BREAK.
- Don’t feel pressured to speak
- Find outlets and space where your input matters
- Don’t feel pressured to carry the Black voice at work or in the classroom
- Don’t take more burden on than you can carry
- Find a comfortable support system and community, don’t battle alone
- If you feel the need to protest, please be safe and make sure those around are there for the same purpose
- Know what your triggers are
- Create boundaries

For Counterparts and Allies

- Increase your knowledge of the inequalities, anti-racism, critical race theory, culturally responsive teaching and inclusive pedagogy, which impact the Black community
- Review Marian's Unity Center Inclusive Language Glossary
- Listen more; Talk less to promote the opportunity of gaining perspective and brave space
- Try to resist the need to respond with a better or different insight about something you’ve read or listened to as it relates to a shared opinion or experience of a Black person
- Know the difference between an ally and wanting to not be a racist
  - An ally works to dismantle systems of oppression
- Please refrain from making remarks as if these occurrences are new
  - “I can’t believe this happens in this day in age”
- Remember that colorblindness is not a good thing
- Be mindful of opening up meetings and interactions with questions like “How are you” or “How was your weekend” during these times, it can be re-triggering
- Diversify your social media
- Acknowledge what is happening and share your empathy
- Don’t stay silent during injustice
- Prayer does not always lead to action, as some misuse the free will God has given
- Be aware of gas lighting language
- Do ask Black colleagues if they would like to make space to discuss BEFORE making space
  - If yes, be sure to listen, don’t over apologize, don’t ask to be educated, don’t ask if you’ve been racist, and don’t force a Black person to share
- Ask for Black input before speaking on or toward the community

Action Item Ideas

- Dispel racism by planning within the following steps:
  - Notice the incident
  - Name the problem
Assume personal responsibility to address it

Choose an intervention strategy in which to address, act or speak on racism issues
- Direct – Address the system or aggressor and come between them and the targets
- Indirect – Address the target that was harmed
- Distanced – Address the harm and impact

Take action
• Understand that being in solidarity has roles, which are:
  - Weavers
  - Experimenters
  - Frontline Responders
  - Visionaries
  - Builders
  - Caregivers
  - Disruptors
  - Healers
  - Storytellers
  - Guides

• Promote opportunities for Black experience outside of the normal occurrences
• Promote the opportunity for Black students to gain an education, which can positively impact their communities
• Donate to Organizations that directly benefit the Black community
• Join text or call movements
• Bring more Black speakers to campus
• Sign petitions
• Assess systemic barriers and oppressions of Black communities, and how to dispel them
• Register to Vote
• Check in your black friends, family, partner and colleagues
• Screenshot, share, and repost resources to educate those around you
• Don’t center the narrative around you. Identify privilege and condemn it.
• Stop supporting organizations that promote hate
• Empathize - Depiction
• Understand that it is uncomfortable for everyone, whether on the giving or receiving end
• Be an ally! Continue being an ally after the outrage and don’t wait for an incident to occur.
